Temporary address
(until mid-January, 1969)

Gentlemen:

In the revised edition of my THE SOVIET ECONOMY: A Collection of Western and Soviet Views (now in press, to be published early ~~xxxxxx~~ this year by Appleton-Century-Crofts, New York) I have included several selections from your "New Directions in the Soviet Economy." ~~xx~~ Wherever I can obtain the information, I like to have under the author's name a brief identifying statement since this often adds to the contribution's prestige. Such a statement may read "University of California, Los Angeles" if he is on that school's faculty, or "Economic Statistician, U.S. Department of State," or "Economist, Soviet Area Specialist, Freelance writer," etc. I would be very grateful if you could furnish me such information for the authors enumerated below ~~xxxxxxxx~~ who contributed to the "New Directions in the Soviet Economy."

STAT
In the case of each selection taken from your publication, a footnote reference will identify the original source of publication. Since the publication is in the public domain, no special reprinting permission is needed. Should you, however, wish for me to include a statement reading "Reprinted by permission ~~off~~ of..." please let me know precisely how you would like it phrased, and send me such written permission. Should you be able to give me the addresses of the authors listed above, I shall also write to them, requesting their permission for inclusion in the footnote reference.

Since the book is already in press, I intend to add this information in galley proofs which ~~xxxx~~ are due within the next few weeks (I hope). I would therefore be very grateful if you could kindly give this matter your early attention.

Sincerely,

Harry G. Shaffer,
Associate Professor
